She has the most alluring eyes, She has the most alluring eyes,
A little Grecian nose;
She wears the most bewitching guise,
And parti-colored hose!
Her touch can thrill one strangely when
One clause her in the dance;
At least, they tell me so,—but then,
I never had the chance!

Her melting tones, so people say,
Intoxicate the brain,
And leave, when she has gone away,
A joy akin to pain.
Her voice is like sweet music when
Its strains are soft and low;
So those who've heard it say—but then,
I never did, you know.

She makes the most superb ragout,
Knits stockings by the score;
Knows Latin, and Italian, too,
Grock, French, and plenty more!
She's just the girl to sweeten life.—
Adorable!—divine!

As a policeman was strolling past a house on Fort street, east, a woman a year or two over forly, having her sleeves rolled up and her hands covered with flour, ran out to the gate and called

'It's a little delicate,' she said, as she leaned over the gate and tried to blush, but I'm a person that knows my rights. and besides, I'm all alone in the world

NO. 14. and posices, I m an and no one to advise me. 'Speak your mind freely, madam,' re-plied the officer, as he tapped on the pickets with his baton.

'You know all about the law, don't you?' she inquired. 'Everything, madam, I can tell you how to go to work in an admiralty case and bring you from that down through divorce, bankruptcy, arson, burglary, false pretenses, hitching a horse to a shade tree and getting intoxicated." 'It's a little delicate, she softly said, as she rubbed the flour off her hands; 'but as I said before, I'm all alone.' Trust me, madam-repose confidence me, he replied, swelling out his chest.

'Well, s'posen you were a widow?'
'Yes, madam.'

'And s'posen one of the boarders gave you a breastpin?" 'I see, madam.' 'And s'posen he smiled at you and sent you poetry, and asked you to ride out on Sunday, and the neighbors whispered around that you were engaged."
